

Using a Literal HTML

If you have access to an HTML editor, or if you are comfortable in HTML, you can design most any web content in HTML. Design your content so that it will appear the way you want it to and then view the corresponding source code. Copy everything including and between the < > and </ > tags.

Once pasted in to your Home Page document, select all of the HTML text and choose Format -> Style -> Literal HTML.

This tells the web browser NOT to display it as text, but to interpret and display it as literal html.

This goes for ANY code that you may wish to display, and not just tables.
